Welcome to Greencroft!

With a big smile and a friendly dose of southern charm, Hugh Davis greeted me with those words in October on my first day at the Greencroft Communities offices.

I was thrilled to be joining this organization that had meant so much to our family and to nearly everyone I know. In the months before I started, everyone had the same sentiment when they learned about my new position: love for Greencroft! I heard about the warm care their mother, sister, or grandpa had received and how their families were extremely grateful to know that Greencroft was there as a trusted, valued, and caring part of the family. I was overwhelmed with all the glowing affirmation!

I began to see more of that when I was introduced to the leadership team. I am super impressed with the commitment, body of knowledge, talent, and genuine goodness of soul each of my colleagues brings to this sacred calling. As I've met team members across all Greencroft communities, it was clear that these qualities of character are embodied by all. I've landed in a great place!

In this edition of Giving magazine, you will be introduced to the Foundation Team, a group dedicated to one goal: enhancing the lives of Greencroft Communities residents through encouraging philanthropy and stewarding gifts to the Foundation. I am so pleased to be part of this joyful and thoughtful group! I am also proud of the work we are doing together and how we are gaining ground on the transformational tasks before us.

Engaging with residents about the things they care about and how Greencroft is part of their own legacy has been truly special and rewarding. As you get to know me, you will understand just how transformative this work has been in my own life. God is good!

The Foundation Team is looking forward to meeting residents and community friends and supporters throughout all Greencroft Communities.

I hope to see you soon!

CARRYING ON A TRADITION OF SERVICE

Meet the Greencroft Communities Foundation team

On an overcast day the first week of May, Abbe Buller cruised around the Greencroft Goshen campus in a tricked-out golf cart, with green fringe waving like bangs and orange and purple leis dangling from the canopy. It was Foundation Fun Week on the Guber, and Abbe took the first shift.

It was her dream, after all, for the Greencroft Communities Foundation team to drive the Guber all week.

The Guber, aka the Greencroft Uber, is a golfcart taxi service, shuttling residents from one location on the campus to another, or across the street to the grocery store, bank, or medical offices. The Guber is street-legal, meaning it's licensed for off-campus driving on neighboring city streets.

What better way to get to know residents than to drive them around campus, Abbe told her boss, Todd Yoder. One of the team's objectives was to promote the work of the Foundation among residents and community friends.

Abbe, the newest member of the team, had been on staff for only five months, filling a newly created position, Fundraising and Donor Services Manager.

She joined Nancy Miller, Fundraising and Donor Stewardship Manager, and Gene Yoder, Director of Donor Relations. The three report to Todd Yoder, President of the Foundation; or, as Gene calls him, "Boss Man."

Todd had been on staff for two months longer than Abbe. He, too, filled a newly created position, Vice President of Development for Greencroft Communities.

Nancy and Gene are the Foundation veterans, with four years and 30 years of tenure, respectively.

To clarify, Gene has been on the Foundation staff for only one year. He retired from Greencroft in 2004 after serving as the CEO for 23 years. He had been hired in 1974 as a manager tasked with converting an Elkhart hotel into senior living apartments. His promotion to CEO came in 1981.

The Retired CEO

Gene and his wife, Fern, live in Magnolia Court on the Goshen campus. He serves on the Greencroft Goshen Board of Directors and the Greencroft Goshen Resident Advisory Council, better known as GGRAC.

As a board member and former CEO, Gene worried the Foundation had been doing its good work so far behind the scenes that not enough people knew what it was or who was doing the work. He came out of retirement in May of 2024 to become a part-time ambassador of sorts, connecting Foundation staff with his neighbors on campus.

In his first year on the job, he introduced the Foundation staff to almost all of the Greencroft Goshen resident groups. The casual presentations occur in conference rooms, chapels, game rooms, outdoor picnic areas, and once in a resident apartment.

Each of the four team members tells a little about themselves and the work they do for the Foundation.

Gene shares the history and mission of the Foundation. Nancy talks about the ministry of benevolence. Abbe promotes events and the Resident Dreams program, a new undertaking for the Foundation. Todd explains how a foundation operates and how the Greencroft Communities Foundation oversees fundraising for all nine Greencroft affiliates. He touches on the importance of aspirational and legacy gifts and answers questions at the end.

"I just love this place," Gene says when it's his turn with the microphone. "Taking care of our people, taking care of each other; that's what the Greencroft Communities Foundation is all about."

The Writer

Nancy joined the Foundation staff in August 2021. Even though her last name is Miller, she is not from Elkhart County. Nancy grew up in Vero Beach, Florida. Bored with only one season year-round, she headed north for college, graduating from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in 1982 with a degree in English. She lived in that state for about 10 years before moving to Elkhart.

Nancy got to know the nonprofit agencies in Elkhart County while writing their stories for The Elkhart Truth newspaper. It was a natural transition for her to jump out of the newsroom and into nonprofit communications and fundraising for the second half of her career.

Before landing at Greencroft, she worked for ADEC and Big Brothers Big Sisters in Elkhart County, and LOGAN in St. Joseph County.

Nancy and her husband, Jim, live in Elkhart with a German shepherd named Sweetness and a dog of questionable pedigree named Bonzo. Their blended family includes three adult children and five brilliant grandchildren.

“Working at Greencroft is a calling, and I know God directed my path here,” she tells residents.

The Connector

Todd grew up in West Liberty, Ohio. As his name suggests, he grew up in the Mennonite church, with Amish roots in Napanee.

He graduated from Goshen College in 1984 with a degree in biology and secondary education. He married his college sweetheart, Kathleen Schertz, and moved with her to Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, in 1986.

“Taking care of our people, taking care of each other; that’s what the Greencroft Communities Foundation is all about.”

Todd worked for 25 years in sales and sales management in Pennsylvania and Georgia before returning to Goshen in 2012 to join the advancement team at Goshen College, serving most recently as Vice President for Advancement. “I have always enjoyed my work, but the invitation to engage with individuals and families as they consider their philanthropic priorities and legacies has been the most joyful and fulfilling part of my career. I am grateful that my path has brought me to this sacred calling at Greencroft.”

He and Kathleen live in Goshen. They have two adult daughters, two sons-in-law, one adorable grandson, and a grand dog, Finley.

When Hugh Davis began his tenure as Greencroft’s new CEO in February of 2024, he realized someone was missing on his executive team. He did not have a Vice President of Development to lead the Foundation.

Hugh and his wife Suzette met Todd and Kathleen through mutual friends at the Yoders’ Super Bowl party. They became friends, and Hugh soon realized Todd would be a great fit at Greencroft. After several conversations, Todd agreed.

Todd’s mother, Rebecca Sommers, and his in-laws, Ron and Leanne Schertz, all live on the campus of Greencroft Goshen, so he was a regular visitor here long before accepting the job.

In his college years, he and Kathleen would visit her grandmother, Lena Frick, who lived on the Goshen campus. Todd enjoys sharing Lena’s story when he speaks to resident groups.

“She turned 65, retired, and moved to Greencroft all on the same day,” he shares. “She lived on this campus for 35 years, moving through the levels of care until she died in Healthcare at the age of 100.”

The experience which carved a place in his heart for Greencroft was the “sending ceremony” for Lena before she died.

“Everyone knew her—staff, administrators, and residents; and they all came by to pay their respects,” he remembers. “That’s when I realized, Greencroft is not just a place, it’s a family.”

Abbe Buller and the Guber.

The Dream Maker

Besides driving golf carts, Abbe loves planning events and fulfilling dreams. At a previous job, she was nicknamed Fairy Godmother because one of her tasks was granting wishes for children.

Abbe grew up in a small town, Pioneer, Ohio, graduating from Bluffton University in 2000 with a degree in business administration. She and her husband, Patrick, lived in Seattle before moving to Goshen in 2011.

They live with two exceptional children, ages 10 and 12, and a clever cat named Storm.

Abbe came to Greencroft from Bethany Christian Schools where she worked as an Advancement Associate for five years. Prior to that, she served as an administrative assistant to the board of directors for Michiana MEDA. In that role, she worked with Kathleen Yoder, Todd's wife.

When Todd told Kathleen about the job opening on his team, she told him he should talk to Abbe. He did, and as usual, his wife had been right.

Abbe recalls, "After learning more about the Greencroft Communities Foundation, it became clear that the values of joyful stewardship, service, and benevolence were things I could really get behind.

"It's been a joy to support the work of the foundation and the mission of Greencroft Communities these last five months!"

The Guber

The team provided 17 rides during their week on the Guber, more than most rides recorded in a given month by the transportation department. Four board members from the Greencroft Communities Foundation each took a shift as co-pilot.

The experience was so much fun for riders and drivers, it will be repeated next year.

For more information about the Foundation or to schedule a team presentation, contact Abbe Buller at 574.537.4066.

Ken Hochstetler, a Foundation board member, co-piloted the Guber with Gene Yoder. One of their passengers was Ken's mother, Arie.

Supporting the Future of nursing

Greencroft Goshen and the Greencroft Communities Foundation have partnered with Goshen College to invest in the next generation of healthcare professionals. Their financial support helped create the largest classroom in the college's new Center for Nursing and Public Health, unveiled during a public open house and ribbon-cutting ceremony on May 7. The new 18,000-square-foot facility includes classrooms, exam rooms, labs, offices, and study areas designed to prepare students for impactful careers in nursing and public health.

Hugh Davis, president and CEO of Greencroft and a former nurse, emphasized the importance of the collaboration.

"One of the greatest public health challenges we face is the aging of America," he said. "Having a top-tier nursing and public health program next door benefits both Greencroft and the students, who gain firsthand experience in geriatric care."

Greencroft's commitment to nursing education also extends through the Gene E. Yoder Legacy of Learning Scholarship Fund, established in 2003 in honor of longtime CEO Gene Yoder, who retired in 2004. Each year, the Foundation awards scholarships to senior nursing students at Goshen College, encouraging them to pursue careers in long-term and geriatric care.

A DONOR PROFILE

SCHROCK FAMILY LEGACY

Three decades. Three generations. More than $3 million donated.

Funding the Future of dementia care

By Nancy Miller

Peter Barrett

When Thelma Schrock was diagnosed with Alzheimer's in the late 1980s, her husband, Harold, began a campaign of generosity to ensure everyone had access to dementia care. Three decades and three generations later, the fundraising he inspired continues with more than $3 million donated in Thelma's name.

The campaign started small with a golf fundraiser in 1991—the very first Thelma A. Schrock Golf Benefit. Harold's children and grandchildren got involved, recruiting friends, family, and business associates to support the cause. Funds raised in those early years supported the Goshen Area Adult Day Care Center at Goshen City Church of the Brethren.

After Thelma died in January of 1995, Harold endowed a fund at Greencroft Goshen to create the Thelma A. Schrock Homestead Adult Day Center, which merged with the church program.

Harold shared his vision for the facility with Gene Yoder, a fellow Goshen Rotarian who was the Greencroft CEO at the time. Harold wanted the Homestead to feel like a home, with a large kitchen, dining area, living room, and library.

"The purpose was to provide an opportunity for families to bring a loved one for several hours or for the entire day," remembered Gene.

The Thelma A. Schrock Homestead opened in early 1995, as part of an expansion plan for Greencroft Goshen Healthcare.

"An adult day care was a new concept for the Goshen community," Gene said. "At first, most participants came from the independent living apartments at Greencroft. But soon, people started coming from the greater community."

Chris Graff, a grandson of Thelma and Harold, served on the boards for both the church-based program and the Greencroft Goshen Foundation. He was instrumental in bringing the two together.

"It was really a great transition to see Greencroft take this over, and serve a lot more people in a lot better way than we were able to in the basement of the church," he recalled.

Golfing for a cause

By then, the golf benefit had become an annual event, raising enough money to subsidize the day program. Homestead participants paid a daily fee based on a sliding scale and their ability to pay. The Greencroft Goshen Foundation provided financial aid for anyone who could not afford the fees.

Chris chaired the golf planning committee for about a dozen years before moving out of state and turning the leadership over to his cousin, Peter Barrett.

Under the direction of Peter and Chris and a dedicated committee of friends and business associates, the golf event grew from a social outing into a highly successful fundraiser.

"I remember when we hit a million dollars cumulatively," said Chris. That was in 2008. "We really pushed the envelope on the amount of money we were asking for. We were probably pretty brash and aggressive asking people for a lot more money than they were used to donating."

The appeal worked because the family led by example, supporting the golf event as the presenting sponsors each year. Harold and Thelma's son, H. Douglas Schrock, and their three daughters, Susan Graff, Sara Barrett, and Cinda McKinney, all contributed generously.

So did the family business, Smoker Craft. A nephew, Rick Hetler, joined the committee and brought his own company, Indiana Wood Products, in as a sponsor.

Harold died in 2012, but the movement he started in his late wife's name continues.

To date, the Thelma A. Schrock Homestead Golf Benefit has raised a cumulative total of $3.8 million. Peter hopes to top $4 million with this year's 35th annual event on September 8.

Sadly, Harold and Thelma's three daughters developed Alzheimer's in their senior years. Cinda died in 2023. Susan and Sara, mothers to Chris and Peter, require daily care.

"The impact hits home for people," Peter said. "Almost every family has somebody dealing with dementia, and the toll is not only on the loved one struggling, but also the caregiver. That's why the Homestead is so vital. It provides care for the whole family by giving the caregiver a much-needed break, a respite."

From one Homestead to another

In June, Greencroft Goshen completed a major renovation project, moving the Homestead into a new wing of the Healthcare building. The modern design stays true to Harold's vision of a homelike setting, with an airy kitchen, a dining room open to a spacious outdoor patio, a living room with a fireplace, and a library furnished with recliners for quiet afternoons.

A covered portico at the entrance to the Homestead gives caregivers a more convenient and accessible location for drop-offs and pick-ups.

Money from the golf event paid for the upgrades.

Peter and the golf committee got a first look at the new space in May.

One decorative touch stood out. Workers had hung a 4-ft cast-iron filigree letter "S" on the living room wall.

Peter smiled when he saw it.

The "S" had hung on the exterior of Thelma and Harold's home in Goshen.

Hugh Davis, the new CEO for Greencroft Communities, had purchased the house, not realizing its history. Hugh and his wife, Suzette, were renovating and didn't know what to do with the "S."

After meeting Peter at the 2024 golf event and learning his connection to their house, they knew exactly where the "S" needed to go.

They moved it from one homestead to another.

When Harold Met Thelma

Thelma Hochstetler met Harold Schrock at Goshen College. She was a Mennonite who grew up in Middlebury. He was a Lutheran and a lifelong Goshen resident. They married on Sept. 3, 1938, a year after his college graduation.

Entrepreneurship ran in Harold's family. His father, Arthur Schrock, founded the Star Tank Company in 1903, the forerunner to the Starcraft Corporation. Harold owned and operated Starcraft until the late 1960s. He re-entered the boat business in later years by buying Smoker Craft and Sylvan Marine in the 1970s and Starcraft in the 1990s. The three companies were merged together in 2006. His other business ventures included Goshen Sash and Door, Earthway Products Inc., Ivy Terrace, and Goshen Iron and Metal.

Harold and Thelma were active in the Goshen community, serving on several boards and donating to many local organizations. They were charter members of both Maplecrest and Elcona country clubs.

Thelma's 16-year struggle with Alzheimer's prompted Harold to donate funds to endow an adult day services center at Greencroft Goshen. She died at Greencroft Goshen Healthcare on Jan. 28, 1985. Harold died May 12, 2012, at the age of 97.

"When my grandfather needed a place for my grandmother to go during the day to get a break from caregiving, he worked with officials at Greencroft Goshen and the Goshen City Church of the Brethren to start an adult day services program," said grandson Peter Barrett.

"My grandfather saw a need in the community for such a service and gave many hours of his time and money to start what is now called the Thelma A. Schrock Homestead at Greencroft Goshen."

The inscription on a plaque hanging in the Homestead details the couple's generosity:

Throughout their lifetimes, Harold and Thelma A. Schrock have exemplified philanthropic leadership by making significant contributions to institutions and organizations within the Goshen Community. Following Thelma's death, Harold made another such gift in her memory to underwrite the Homestead Day Activity Program.

In memory of Thelma A. Schrock and in appreciation of the philanthropic support of the Schrock family, this innovative and award-winning facility was officially dedicated and named The Thelma A. Schrock Homestead on May 5, 1996.

What's better than spending a day on the golf course?

Doing it in support of individuals living with memory loss—and the families who love them.

Join us for the 35th Annual Thelma A. Schrock Homestead Golf Benefit on September 8 at Elcona Country Club. This popular event raises crucial funds for the Thelma A. Schrock Homestead, an adult day program on the campus of Greencroft Goshen, where compassion, dignity, and care come together.

For 35 years, proceeds from the Golf Benefit have driven innovation, expanded access, and provided financial assistance for families who otherwise couldn't afford care. This year is especially meaningful as we celebrate the completion of a transformative renovation—enhancing accessibility and creating an even more welcoming, comfortable environment for all who walk through our doors.

As one family caregiver shared:

“ The Homestead is truly one of the most significant services Greencroft provides. ”

Call the Greencroft Community Foundation at 574-537-4708, email foundation@greencroft.org, or scan the QR code to see how you can be part of this impactful event.

Your support is more than appreciated—it's powerful.

Greencroft's Gold Leaf Legacy Society transforms lives

By Suzette Davis

Suzette Davis is Managing Director for MHS Consulting. Her husband, Hugh, is the CEO of Greencroft.

At Greencroft Communities, compassion and community are more than values—they are a way of life. For over six decades, our mission has been carried forward by individuals whose generosity has created a lasting impact on our residents. As we relaunch the Gold Leaf Legacy Society Appreciation Event, we are reminded that the heart of our mission beats strongest through the generosity of those who envision a future where every resident lives with security, dignity and grace.

Gene Yoder, former CEO and a current Greencroft resident, recalls how his passion for Greencroft's mission led him to include the Foundation in his estate plans. "It's part of who we have been and who we continue to be," Gene shares. "The commitment to serve all older adults, regardless of their financial ability, is in Greencroft's DNA."

Fern and Gene Yoder

Del and Lou Ann Good

It is this deep-rooted belief that continues to inspire many others, like Lou Ann Good and her husband, Del, who together committed a portion of their estate to Greencroft. Having worked for Greencroft for many years, LuAnn understood firsthand how crucial benevolent care funds are to ensuring no resident ever has to leave their home due to financial hardship.

The collective generosity of Gold Leaf members has already made transformational differences: maintaining benevolent care, supporting housing for those with limited means, and nurturing a community where faith, service, and love flourish. Legacy gifts provide a critical foundation for Greencroft's future, enabling us to plan boldly, steward wisely, and dream bigger for the generations to come.

In September, we will host an appreciation event to honor the faithful stewards of Greencroft's mission as Gold Leaf Legacy Society members and invite others to continue this legacy of compassion. By choosing to include Greencroft in your estate plans, you leave behind more than a gift—you leave a legacy of love that lives on for generations.

Greencroft Communities Foundation

GOLD LEAF LEGACY Society

The Gold Leaf Legacy Society honors, memorializes, and thanks those friends who arranged to leave a charitable/planned gift or a bequest. Membership is open to all who wish to make a lasting gift. There is no minimum donation for society membership. This includes gifts through wills, retirement plans, and insurance policies, as well as life income and other deferred gifts.

To join the Gold Leaf Legacy Society, a prospective donor informs the Greencroft Communities Foundation that the affiliate foundation of their choosing has been included in their estate plans.

Please call the Foundation for more information at 574-537-4066.

“The commitment to serve all older adults, regardless of their financial ability, is in Greencroft’s DNA.”

Plan your giving for a bigger impact

With retirement comes the opportunity to spend more time and resources supporting the causes that mean most to you.

But it's no secret that the world of charitable giving can be confusing. Numerous acronyms, requirements, and deadlines – these can all be hurdles that prevent you from meeting your charitable giving goals.

As your trusted guide in giving, Everence® is here to help you break through the clutter and confusion of charitable giving, so you can make an impact for generations to come.

We'll start by breaking down common acronyms related to charitable giving:

RMD (Required Minimum Distribution) – You are required to start taking distributions from your retirement accounts in your early 70s, even if you don't need the money for your living expenses. When you receive those RMDs, you must pay taxes on the distributions.

QCD (Qualified Charitable Distribution) – Are you currently required to take an RMD? Do you give regular gifts to your church or a charity? If you answered yes to both questions, a QCD is likely the best way for you to make your gifts. QCDs take the place of your RMD and, by directing them to church and charity, you'll avoid paying any taxes. You can give more effectively with your retirement savings going tax-free directly to the charities that are important to you.

DAF (Donor Advised Fund) – Both a checking and savings account for giving, DAFs are a popular way to maximize your income tax deductions by timing your giving to get the most tax savings. If you have stock that has risen in value, you can donate it and essentially “give away” the tax bill associated with your capital gains. When you do that, you'll get a double benefit of avoiding taxes while also receiving a tax deduction for the full value of the stock.

CRUT (Charitable Remainder Unitrust) – Another popular charitable giving tool, CRUTs are a type of charitable trust that allow you to donate assets (such as cash, stocks and bonds, real estate, etc.) to a charity while receiving income for a set timeframe – usually your lifetime or a fixed number of years. Once the payout period ends, the charity receives the remaining assets.

If you still have questions about charitable giving and the resources available to you, that's OK. To help guide your journey, Everence will feature a series of articles about charitable giving tools in upcoming issues of Giving magazine. In the meantime, you can contact an Everence financial representative at everence.com/michiana to get started today.

How to Become a

Foundation Donor

Your Gifts Make a Difference—Every Month

At Greencroft Communities, we care for one another like family. When there's a need, we find a way to meet it. Rooted in faith, we believe serving others is our calling.

Through the Greencroft Communities Foundation, generous donors like you support residents, team members, and campus improvements across all our affiliates.

Now, we invite you to take the next step:

Make your gift a recurring, monthly donation.

Your monthly support sustains our benevolence ministries year-round, ensuring residents who have outlived their resources continue receiving the care, dignity, and community they deserve. Even a modest monthly gift provides steady, reliable funding that helps us plan ahead and respond with compassion when needs arise.

It's simple to set up—and you can change or cancel anytime. Most importantly, your ongoing generosity helps carry forward our mission of care and kindness every day.

Become a monthly supporter today and make a lasting impact all year long.

To give online, scan the QR code and use the drop-down menu to select the affiliate you wish to support. Click on the "Recurring gift" tab to give monthly.

Greencroft Middlebury Dedicates Bontrager Ridge Assisted Living

We the Bontrager family and Jayco have been blessed and supported by the Middlebury Community for many years. As God has blessed us, we with joy are able to give back to our community.

— Bertha Bontrager-Rhodes

Hugh Davis (center), President and CEO of Greencroft Communities, cuts the ribbon officially dedicating Bontrager Ridge at Greencroft Middlebury. Standing beside him are Bertha Bontrager-Rhodes, whose family served as the lead donor for the $5.3 million building project, and Darrin Miller, Executive Director of Greencroft Middlebury. Pictured with them are Bontrager family members and friends who supported the campaign to bring Assisted Living services to the campus: (from left) Kim Huffman, David Hawkins, Derald Bontrager, Rev. Terry and Julie Diener, Wilbur Bontrager, Nancy and Bob Hawkins, Joel Miller, and Todd Yoder, Vice President of Development, Greencroft Communities.
